LEADERSHIP FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

Envisioning Excellence for Community College Leadership is a bold new initiative at North Carolina State University’s College of Education designed to enhance and expand NC State’s historic relationship with North Carolina’s community colleges.

Our top level priorities include:

✓ Aiding in the formation of a statewide resource network to help community colleges and their leaders achieve better student access, credential completion, and workforce development outcomes

✓ Offering accelerated executive graduate programs designed to prepare the next generation of community college leaders whose competencies are anchored in evidenced-based best practices

✓ Providing professional development opportunities for college leaders and institutional teams that address contemporary challenges facing community colleges

Professional development opportunities are designed to address the following challenges affecting community colleges:

✓ Enhancing access and success rates for historically under-represented student populations

✓ Integrating student onboarding and support services

✓ Using data to drive decisions that support student success

✓ Engaging faculty in new practices to improve teaching and learning

✓ Building credential pathways

✓ Working with employers to align programs with labor market needs

✓ Building and scaling transfer structures

✓ Developing transformational change management skills to improve institutional performance

✓ Partnering beyond the college for collective impact

✓ Assessing institutional strengths and weaknesses regarding student learning, completion, equity and labor market outcomes

NC State is partnering with The Aspen Institute’s College Excellence Program to develop and launch Envisioning Excellence for Community College Leadership, an initiative that will be guided by an advisory council of community college leaders from North Carolina and across the nation. This work is being supported in part by the John M. Belk Foundation.
